１．Lucy realized that she didn't have her suitcase after the train left.

２．Lucy could get back her suitcase thanks to other people's help.

３．Mike thinks that it is natural for people to make the same mistake again.

４．Mike had to leave his school because he gave his job to a new teacher.

Mike：Have you made any mistakes recently?

Lucy：Hmm... yes. I made a mistake last week. I left my suitcase on a train by mistake.

Mike：Oh no! What happened?

Lucy：I was on a train. The train stopped at the station. There were many people on the train. They were football fans, and they were singing very *loudly. I wanted to get off the train quickly. So I got off the train. But a few minutes later, I found that I didn't have my suitcase.

Mike：That's a bad mistake. Did you get back your suitcase?

Lucy：Yes, I was very lucky. When I looked at the *platform, the train was still there. I said to the people on the platform, "My suitcase is on the train!" They stopped the train. I ran and *grabbed my suitcase. Soon after that, the train left, but I got back my suitcase. I will not forget my suitcase again.

Mike：You can say that, but people usually repeat mistakes.

Lucy：Right. And we all make mistakes. Some are small, but some are big. Have you made a big mistake?

Mike：Yes. I had a job I really liked. I was teaching English at a school. I liked the job and I had good friends. But one day, I thought, "Maybe I can go to a new place and do something new." So I talked to my *boss and said, "I want to leave this school." But one week later, I wanted to go back.

Lucy：Did you get the job again?

Mike：Well, my boss said, "It's too late. I will give the job to a new teacher." I was very sad.

Lucy：Oh no!

Mike：But in the end, it was OK. The new teacher didn't want the job, so I could go back. Now I really enjoy teaching English. I have to be careful when I make a big decision.

Lucy：That's true! I think we can learn from our mistakes.
